Rustenburg – Jamane Moses Mugumo (26) was sentenced by the Rustenburg Regional Court on Tuesday, 17 October, to an effective ten years' jail term for robbery with aggravating circumstances which occurred at the Kgaswane Mountain Reserve in December 2015.

Mugumo and two of his accomplices, all foreign nationals and armed to the teeth, entered one of the employees' chalets in the reserve; held them at gunpoint and robbed them of valuables. "The employees were tied with cords and assaulted," says sergeant Ofentse Mokgadi, police spokesperson. A massive manhunt was launched and Mugumo was found in Matebeleng, close to Kroondal. Major general Adams expressed gratitude to the investigating officers and other role players including members of the community.

Serial rapist appears in court

Rustenburg/Brits – An alleged serial rapist, Letlhogonolo Modisane (34) appeared before the Brits Magistrates' Court on Monday, 30 October.

Modisane has been in police custody since his arrest on Friday, 18 August. Modisane has been linked to a series of rape and robbery cases committed between 2015 and 2017.

The accused would target unemployed females with a promise of jobs. Claiming to be a senior human resource manager in Kroondal, Modisane would lure the women to places and then rape and rob them.

Says lieutenant general Baile Motswenyane, North West provincial commissioner: "We commend members of the Brits Family Violence, Sexual Offences and Child Protection for their committed and tireless investigation to bring this criminal to book."
