BUSES TORCHED

EXPLOSION SOUNDED THROUGH CBD

Rustenburg – At around 18h45 on Thursday evening an explosion sounded through the CBD of Rustenburg. It was the noise of a Bojanala bus diesel tank exploding. Angry commuters set alight two of their buses at the Rustenburg taxi rank. The bus company operates in the greater Rustenburg area, transporting people to villages around the city. Platinum Weekly was on the scene within minutes. The fire brigade was accompanied by the SAPS due to the volatile situation. It was tense!

Commuters were throwing stones... Rubber bullets were fired... At time of going to print it was not yet clear how the buses were set alight, although it is suspected that petrol bombs were used. On questioning some of the commuters, the reason for the uproar was clear as daylight; "There is not enough buses to take us home," one commuter said. Apparently, numerous commuters bought monthly tickets, which they cannot use, as there are not enough buses. "The tickets are not worth the paper it is printed on," another angry commuter commented. The general feeling under the commuters was that the Bojanala bus company should not have sold them the tickets if they could not deliver the service. "The least they could have done was to arrange alternative transport for us," another commuter added. It is said that the traffic department impounded around 49 buses belonging to the Bojanala Bus Service, the main reason being – "operating illegally after their permit expired as well as outstanding fines".

We were informed by a source who wish to remain anonymous that the amount due, in order for the traffic department to release the buses, is R150 000. Just on Wednesday the Rustenburg Local Municipality issued a press release of recovering over half a million rand in unpaid traffic fines. "The Rustenburg Local Municipality's Traffic Law Enforcement Personnel has collected over R 500 000 in outstanding traffic warrants... We will stop at nothing to enforce road traffic laws within Rustenburg." (Extracts of press release 4 May 2011)
