A Gardener's Delight: The Glorious Hyacinth

Hyacinths are loved the world over and are an all time favourite of many gardeners. They are adored for their beautiful, sweet and heady scent, which captivates any passer-by. Their appearance is also truly sumptuous, as a multitude of bell-shaped flowers cover their stem in a colourful cylindrical cluster. The name hyacinth is said to derive from the Greek word Hyakinthos (Hyacinthus), which was the name of a divine hero in Greek mythology. Hyacinthus was a handsome young man, loved by Apollo (the God of Sun). One day Hyacinthus was fatally wounded and Apollo vowed that the charm and beauty of Hyacinthus would never be forgotten. Apollo summoned fragrant, purple flowers from the blood of his beloved and decreed these proud and upright blooms would always be known as hyacinths. Just as Apollo loved the hero of this tale, we too adore the beautiful blooms and fragrance that emerge from the Hyacinth bulb.

around the beds. They love to nestle in little groups of five or more in cool, shady nooks. There they can push up their dense spikes of white and purple blooms.

They also grow well in pots and are excellent for hydroponics. Hyacinths are ready to be planted from late-April to mid-June and will flower from July to September. Hyacinths in containers only need a light covering of soil and a drainage hole to carry away excess water. In the open ground it is best to cover the bulbs with at least 5cm of soil to prevent them from drying out. Hyacinths do not flourish in warm soil, so add compost to help keep them cool and a layer of mulch to retain moisture. A position sheltered by overhanging branches is best for hyacinths, as they do not enjoy fierce sunlight. Whether you choose a container or a border for these bulbs, we promise a throng of hyacinths in bloom will add the sweetest scents and most sumptuous sights to your winter garden. As with all your bulbs, don't forget the Three Hyacinths are perfect subjects for small gardens. For a relatively small outlay you can create a riveting display of form, colour and texture. Plant your bulbs in a concentrated mass rather than dotting them
