"Prosecute NW mine bosses"

NW – Expressing support for protests against mining fatalities, Cosatu on Wednesday (5 May 2011) called on the government to prosecute mining bosses in non-compliance with safety legislation.

"Our workplaces must be safe at all times, not only when there are inspections," the union federation's provincial secretary Solly Phetoe said in a statement. "We are losing members, we are losing union leaders, we are losing parents and we are losing community leaders; and this due to the attitude of the mine bosses, who only care about production to make profit for their own capitalist program of self-enrichment," he claimed.

The National Union of Mineworkers (Num) reiterated in a statement that, "noted with serious concern," a 27% rise in mine deaths on a month-to-month comparison to end of March 2011, as compared to the same period in 2010.

It resolved its regions would begin with "build-up" protests leading to an industry-wide day of mourning to be observed later this year.

Phetoe said the department of mines must release a report on those killed and left disabled by mine accidents. He called on the government to provide compensation to their relatives, and for mine bosses to take responsibility for their children.
