Bulb of the Week: Hydroponics

Hydroponics is a fascinating process that allows plants to use only water to flourish, no soil required. The greatest thing about hydroponics is that it enables everyone everywhere to enjoy bulbs.

If you do not have a garden or balcony on which to keep potted bulbs, you do not have to miss out on their magnificent blooms, just grow them hydroponically! Not all bulbs can be grown on water alone, best results are obtained from hyacinths and Paperwhite narcissi.

The easiest way to grow your hyacinths is in a specially designed glass vase, shaped like an hourglass. Pour water into the vase until it just reaches the indentation. Place your hyacinth bulb into the vase so that it fits snugly above the indentation.

Alternatively, you can grow your hyacinths in a larger container if you use pebbles, glass chips or marbles for the bulbs to rest upon.

Whatever container you use, it is important that the bottom of the bulbs is just above of the water. The bulbs will make sure that their roots find their way down into the water. If the bulbs have prolonged contact with water, there is a chance they will rot.
