Father & Son burn to ashes – Vehicle dragged by Ratel

Rustenburg – Mr. Andre van Rooyen and his son, also named Andre van Rooyen, were burnt to ashes when their vehicle was forced into the path of a convoy of army Ratels. The accident occurred around 4h30pm on Tuesday (31 May 2011) close to Rainbow Chickens.

Spokesperson for the department Public Safety, Lesiba Kgwele said that just behind the well-known 'Tant Dollie se Plaas', a Renault that was driving direction Rustenburg towards Buffelspoort hit a Nissan Sentra that was standing still, indicating to turn right, from behind. The impact forced the Sentra into the path of an oncoming Ratel that was part of a convoy of 4 army vehicles. The vehicle of the van Rooyens was dragged for over 50 metres before it came to a standstill. It is believed that fuel leaking from the Nissan, crushed by the Ratel, was set alight by the sparks as the Nissan was dragged along by the army vehicle.

The Ratel also caught fire. The driver and a passenger in the Renault only sustained minor injuries and was taken to Netcare Ferncrest and Peglarae hospitals. No one from the army vehicles was injured. Spokesperson Lesiba Kgwele said speed and failure to observe a safe following distance could have been the cause of the accident. The police are investigating cases of culpable homicide and reckless driving. North West MEC for public safety, Desbo Mohono, conveyed her condolences to the family of the van Rooyens who lost their loved ones in the accident. Mohono also appealed to motorists to observe safe following distances and to drive with caution, particularly during rush hour traffic.
