

With 100 days to go before South Africa starts their defence of the Webb Ellis Cup in New Zealand, Bafana Bafana came together to show their support and unite behind the Boks as they prepare to take on the world.

Wednesday, 1 June 2011 marked exactly 100 days to the start of the 2011 Rugby World Cup tournament, and Bafana Bafana played their part in being part of the festivities by wearing Springbok jerseys to wish the team luck.

The Senior Men's National team is in camp ahead of their important 2012 Africa Cup of Nations qualifier against Egypt which will be played on Sunday, 5 June 2011 in Cairo. Kick-off is at 20h30.

On Wednesday, the South African Rugby Union

(SARU) launched a massive 'Unite behind the Boks 2011' campaign, which Bafana Bafana could not attend. The campaign is to ensure public excitement at the Springbok campaign and a call to support the national team.

Just as it took place with the 2010 FIFA World Cup, as well as the Cricket World Cup, Fridays and World Cup match days have been set aside for the public to wear Springbok jerseys in support of the national team and will be known as Bok Day.

"This time last year South Africans from all around the country united as we showed the world how wonderful our country is. Bafana Bafana felt the passion and energy of all South Africans as we took on the world and now we encourage all South Africans to unite behind the Springboks as they go to defend their title as World Champions," said Bafana Bafana head coach Pitso Mosimane. His sentiments were echoed by Captain Steven Pienaar.

"We ask all South Africans to wear Green & Gold on all Bok Days to show the team that they have the support of the nation. We felt it and we hope the Boks will feel it too. Bafana wishes the Springboks well over the next 100 days. May the preparations go as planned and may you all stay injury free to ensure that South Africa can field the strongest team as you take on the world. Good luck, we are all united behind you," said Pienaar.
