100 Day Programme 2011

Rustenburg – Our Mayor of the Rustenburg Local Municipality, Cllr. Mpho Khunou recently showcased his 100 Day Programme (IDP) for 2011.

“During the 2011 Local Government Elections, our people got an opportunity to choose leadership by electing their preferred parties – thereby putting them into office. By so doing, they have put trust in the leadership to run their lives. We are therefore bound by duty to deliver to the electorates the services they so much deserve,” said Cllr. Khunou.

The stability during and after elections, have provided a perfect platform for the government to focus more on socio-economic developments. Coupled with this is a speedy service delivery to struggling communities whose only hope is the government of the day.

The Integrated Development Plan (IDP) is a consultative process which requires meaningful involvement of a wide range of stakeholders. It is a strategic process requiring a focused approach and a systematic search for the most appropriate and effective solutions. The IDP is implementation-oriented planning which requires specifics in terms of quality and quantity; responsibilities; location; time; cost inputs as well as to ensure that delivery takes place. It is a process through which municipalities prepare a strategic development plan which extends over a five-year plan.

In line with the Municipal 2025 Vision, we espouse to have an appropriately skilled labour force. This in simple terms means that we need to ensure that our people are fully trained and skilled so that they equal their daily tasks. We also need to ensure that our Retention Strategy is sound enough that it helps keep the workforce we need and that we don't lose the best people we produce to other sectors. The 100 Day Programme therefore seeks to address the questions of speeding up service delivery within our community.
