2-Day Health Forum

The North West Health Department in conjunction with the North West University (Mafikeng Campus) will convene a two-day Provincial Health Consultative Forum to be attended by health stakeholders.

The aim of the forum is to involve both internal and external stakeholders to participate and advise the department on its policies and programmes targeted at improving the provision of health care services (12 June 2011). Amongst the issues focused on at the forum included:

- Improving health status of communities through implementation of integrated health programmes;
- Promotion of healthy living;
- Management of district health systems; and
- Providing accessible, equitable and affordable comprehensive primary health care services; Stakeholders include academics, traditional leaders, traditional health practitioners, the Health Portfolio Committee, municipalities, non-governmental organisations, unions, the Provincial Council on Aids, private sector institutions as well as senior managers in the department.

These stakeholders will form part of multi-sectoral approach to advance and monitor delivery of health care services to the people. This will be done through the establishment of a provincial health consultative forum according to section 28 of the National health Act of 2003.

The Act requires Members of the Executive Council to establish a consultative body functioning within the jurisdiction of the province. The forum will promote, facilitate interaction, communication and sharing of information on provincial health issues between representatives of the provincial department and municipal organisations identified by the member of the executive council. This forum is required by law to meet once every 12 months to review the policies and project targeted at imparting services to the people.

The University will also facilitate workshops to train members of governance structures on the challenges and the role that they should play in improving health service delivery particularly at Primary Health Care level.

The two day forum took place on the 14-15th of June 2011 at the Alpha Conference Centre, Broederstroom near Haartebeespoort.

Youth involved in Agriculture

The North West MEC from the Department of Agriculture and Rural Development, Mr Boitumelo Tshwene says his department will pull out all stops to involve young people in the agricultural- and rural development sector, in an effort to motivate them to take full ownership of the agricultural resources (13 June 2011).

MEC Tshwene says as the country is commemorating the 35th anniversary of the Soweto youth uprising, young people with interest in agriculture must vow to continue to build on their future by becoming strategic partners in growing a sustainable agriculture and ensuring rural development. Tshwene says the action taken by the youth of 1976 who declared war against the system of apartheid was a clear indication that they were prepared to make personal sacrifices necessary to liberate themselves; an act which he says youth with interest in agriculture must live up to. "In doing so," the MEC pointed out, "young people must affirm their contribution towards the fight against poverty and starvation and help us reach the commitment to halve poverty by 2015."

"It is our belief that a working youth is critical to our future and as a department, we have made reasonable strides in attracting the youth into the agricultural sector. Such discernible efforts will however not stop us from continuing to urge the youth of our province to value and show some consideration for agriculture.

As outlined in the recently approved departmental budget vote for the 2011/2012 financial year, some funds are destined towards youth projects with a guaranteed plan to create sustainable jobs. These projects include amongst others the Miga Youth Seedling Cooperative from Ramatlabama village, the Strategic Poultry & Farming Primary Cooperative in Klerksdorp, the Rethabile Youth Cooperative from Morokweng as well as the Mogogakgomo Youth Vegetable project in Moretele.
