Reward a Cop, Report a Cop

Rustenburg – Let your voice be heard. We all listen to the voice of someone. As humans this is inescapable. There is a point, however, where we must stop listening and start acting. Be part of something bigger, we dare you to sidestep any prejudice views that you might have and play your role in "Reward a Cop, Report a Cop". The Platinum Weekly talked to Brigadier Sam Dube, Rustenburg Station Commander and Captain Elsabe Augoustides, Head of Corporate Communications, Rustenburg SAPS about the much talked-about initiative of ISS Africa (Institute of Security Studies) "Reward a Cop, Report a Cop".

The heading says it all, civilians are encouraged to give their input to combat police misconduct, including corruption, and to support honest, hard working police officers. This initiative aims to shape a culture of police excellence, using public input. Let your voice be heard and let it be a voice of truth. Brigadier Dube: "The media love to give coverage on negative aspects. In most cases, what is good is not recognised, but if something is bad... I believe that a great deal of positive fruits would be reaped through this project. It would encourage and uplift the morale of our men and woman in the SAPS. There is currently a reward policy in place at the SAPS, where the members get letters signed by the National Commissioner in person, but this "Reward a Cop, Report a Cop" takes it that extra mile."

"People must also keep in mind that not all negative things said should be taken as truth, a lot of the time it is allegations made by people with a hidden agenda. Every negative allegation made, would however be investigated," Captain Elsabe Augoustides added. Various communication channels are available with tips and information on how you can "reward a cop, or report a cop". These include the Crime Hub at www.is-safrica.org/crimehub, Facebook and by following @RewardaCop on Twitter. The Platinum Weekly would regularly update you on this initiative. ...Let your voice be heard...
