Gang-rape victim dies

People are being warned to carefully scrutinize job advertisements before responding in the wake of an incident that has resulted in the death of a Cape Town woman who was gang raped and died as a result. The Cape Argus newspaper reported on Monday that Roz van der Vyver (38) died in the intensive care unit of Karl Bremer hospital in Cape Town on Sunday afternoon.

Van der Vyver was a former operations manager at the Baxter Theatre. "We are very saddened by the loss of a former colleague and under such a dreadful series of events," Baxter Theatre spokesperson Fahiem Stellenboom told The Cape Argus. Van der Vyver responded to an advertisement on the internationally renowned Gumtree website for a casual stocktaking job in the suburb of Observatory. She went to the interview in a minibus full of passengers, apparently heading to the store for a night shift.

After arriving at the store, she was told that there were no vacancies available. She and others were offered tea, coffee and juice. Van der Vyver allegedly woke up on a stretch of grass in Table View the next morning. She remembered being hit on the head after drinking the juice. She had apparently been gang raped. Police spokesperson Captain Frederick van Wyk said the case was under investigation.

Cosatu marches against Racism & Farm Killings

Delareyville – A protest march against racism will be held in Delareyville, North West, on Wednesday, said Cosatu.

Spokesperson Solly Phetoe said the march was against the violence and killings of farm workers in the area. The union was also demanding basic services for the poor people living there and recreational facilities for the youth. Phetoe said protesters would march to the Delareyville Magistrate's Court and hand over a memorandum.

He claimed the courts previously dismissed cases where black people had been attacked by white farmers in the area. Similar marches would be held in Lichtenburg, Potchefstroom and Vryburg. ...Cosatu Press Release

Down the Drain...

Potchefstroom – Close to a million litres of alcohol was flushed down the drain by members of the SAPS in Potchefstroom. Yip... 919 341 litres of alcohol went down the drain.

"Where does all that booze go to? Should they not have done an environmental impact study?" a co-worker asked. During Friday morning 16 September, the North West Police got rid of "illegal liquor" collected over a period of time valued at R755 000.

Most of this liquor was seized during the previous festive and Easter holidays through operations called, Operation Duty Calls and Operation Paseka. "The SAPS have noted with great concern, the mushrooming of illegal liquor operators in the province, selling of liquor to underage groups and misuse of alcohol which is contributing to 55% of our contact crimes.

This province is experiencing the rise in incidents of Sexual Offences, Assaults, Murder, Rape, Robbery and theft.

The misuse of alcohol is also contributing immensely to road carnage in which people lose their lives due to drunken driving," a spokesperson for the SAPS said.

Policing Taverns

Rustenburg/ Phokeng – Police members from Phokeng, accompanied by members from the Liquor Board have visited various taverns in and around Phokeng, Robega and Chaneng over the past weekend.

Registers were checked and those owners who did not comply with regulations in terms of the Liquor Act, received fines of up to R1 500. Tavern owners were once again reminded to adhere to agreed business hours and not to sell liquor to minors. Women are requested to safeguard themselves and not to walk from taverns alone at night, preventing rapes, robberies and assaults. The North West Deputy Provincial Commissioner Lieutenant General William Mpembe confirms that numerous visits to taverns will be carried out over the coming Festive period and tavern owners are requested to assist the Police in the fight against crime. In the above mentioned areas, police will be carrying out spontaneous visits to check on whether or not taverns operating in the area are in possession of operating licences and also to inspect the hygienic conditions of their facilities. "We have noticed a trend where a number of crimes can be traced back to taverns and we have found out that some of them are not licensed," said Capt Elsabe Augoustides of the SAPS communications unit in Rustenburg. "Some of the taverns are hygienic and good places for people to interact in but unfortunately some of them are not well maintained and harbour criminals," she added.
