Phakoe murder suspects Bail Denied

Rustenburg – Former Rustenburg mayor Mathews Wolmarans – together with three others facing allegations of murdering Moss Phakoe – were denied bail on Tuesday 11 October and will remain in police custody. The Rustenburg Magistrate's Court postponed the case to 24 October. Wolmarans, Rustenburg Councillor Amos Mataboge, businessman Oupa Mphomane and Enock Matshaba are facing charges of murder and conspiracy to murder, in connection with the death of ANC councillor Moss Phakoe in 2009. Phakoe was at the forefront of an investigation into corruption at the Rustenburg Local Municipality, when he was shot at the driveway of his home in Rustenburg North. The murder occurred after Phakoe put up ANC posters for the national elections, and handed in a report about corruption in the municipality. The allegations related to the outsourcing of the Rustenburg Kloof Resort operation owned by the municipality and operated jointly by Mphomane. Wolmarans stepped down as mayor in 2008 when a vote of no confidence was passed against him. Cosatu secretary-general Zwelinzima Vavi welcomed the verdict while the provincial National Union of Metal Workers of South Africa also applauded the court for denying the suspects bail. "Phakoe was a principled cadre and a fighter against corruption that ravages municipalities across the country," it said in a statement.

Farmer killed

Dwaalboom/ Thabazimbi – A 50-year-old man was murdered on his farm in Limpopo, police said on Thursday. The body of Douw Brummer was discovered on Wednesday (12 October 2011) by police at the farm Goedgedacht in the Dwaalboom area, Lt-Col Ronel Otto said. He reportedly lived alone on the farm. He was shot in the back of his head. The farmhouse's safe was found open, his weapons stolen. "Investigations are underway to establish if anything else was stolen from the farm. No arrests have been made," a police spokesperson said. Farm workers made the grisly discovery around 06h00 on Wednesday morning. According to his farm workers Brummer arrived home at around 22h00 on Tuesday night, after he delivered cattle at an auction. They heard him entering the farmyard. They allegedly also heard a loud bang, but did not investigate. No one has been arrested to date, but it was reported that neighbours of Brummer gave a photo of a suspect to the SAPS.
