Wolmarans to appeal bail denied

Police giving a statement on the Phakoe murder case.

Rustenburg/ Mahikeng – According to sources, former Rustenburg Mayor, Mathews Wolmarans – implicated in the 2009 murder of Moss Phakoe – will appeal against the “bail denied” decision. As per last weeks article, this is what the Platinum Weekly expected, and we are still of the opinion that bail will then be granted. The courts have set the date of Wolmarans’ appeal on November 8 or 9. Oupha Mphomane and Amos Mataboge, who was also implicated and arrested – were in the meantime both granted bail.

The trial of the four has been set for 1 February 2012 and will be conducted at the High Court in Mahikeng.

Meanwhile, North West police have released a statement to the media after being heavy criticised following the decision to grant bail to Oupa Mphomane and Amos Mataboge.

“It is not our decision that suspects be granted bail, it remains the suspect’s Constitutional Right to apply for bail. Even if we oppose their bail application, it remains the decision of the court whether an application be granted or denied. Whether the suspects will be found guilty or not, remains within the process of Criminal Justice System,” said SAPS Deputy Provincial Commissioner, Major General Ryno Naidoo.

“We have previously received numerous criticisms from all quarters of the society and we do not anticipate the same going forward. We would only urge the community of the North West Province to be patient enough in order to allow justice take its course.” Phakoe – an anti-corruption activist – was shot and killed execution style on 14 March 2009 while inside his car at the driveway of his home in Rustenburg North.
