Are You An Aspiring Film-maker?

Lessons on Screenwriting

Cllr. Louis Diremelo,
Mayor of the Bojanala
Platinum District Municipality

Rustenburg – Ms. Neiloe Khunyeli – the Junior Production and Development Executive at the National Film and Video Foundation (NFVF) – gave a lecture on Screenwriting at the Ster Kinekor cinemas in Phokeng as part of the Bojanala Film Week. “There are various forms of funding that are available but they all have their conditions. Interested persons can also receive training that would equip them to excel in their careers,” she said.

Ms. Khunyeli also revealed that the film industry in South Africa is growing at a very fast rate and that it is actually one of the oldest film industries in the world. A question and answer session was also conducted as the audience sought more understanding and clarity around issues related to screenwriting. The National Film & Video Foundation (NFVF) is a statutory body mandated by parliament to spearhead the development of the South African film and video industry.

The vision of the NFVF is to strive for a quality South African film and video industry that is representative of the nation, commercially viable and one that would encourage development. The NFVF aims to creating an environment that would develop and promote the South African film and video industry, domestic and international.
