USA coach impressed by local basketball talent

Rustenburg/Phokeng – A United States-based coach involved in a partnership with the Royal Bafokeng Nation (RBN) to develop basketball talent in and around Phokeng, is greatly impressed by the amount of enthusiasm, energy and talent that is being shown by these young students. Mr. Joby Wright – NBA Africa/Royal Bafokeng Technical Director – says he is encouraged by how the young basketball players in the various schools in Phokeng have continued to improve their techniques within the relatively short time that he has been working with them. "I am very impressed... these kids are a true inspiration," he said.

The coach hopes to organize a basketball tournament with an 'All Star Team' early next year that is also expected to bring schools together from Johannesburg and Pretoria. However, according to Mr. Wright, developmental programmes of this nature can only be effective with the support and sponsorship of corporate companies.

"I cannot, at the moment, compare these children to the standard in the United States but they have shown that with time, and given the adequate support, they will be able to reach another level.

Next year, I think the standard will be three times better," he added.

The Royal Bafokeng NBA Development Program teaches basketball fundamentals as well as life skills through the "Sports in Schools" initiative, which emphasises the value of physical education and sports as part of a holistic approach to education. The NBA has a long and proud history in the African continent.
