Body of missing miner found

Carletonville –“Rescue teams have managed to recover the body of a mine worker, who had been missing from Wednesday November 16 at the Kusasaletu Mine.” a spokesperson for Harmony Gold said. The miner disappeared after a seismic event at the mine near Carletonville last week.

Investigations are currently underway to establish the detailed cause of the accident and all operations at the mine have been suspended until an acceptable level of investigations is reached.

CEO Graham Briggs and his management team expressed their sincerest condolences to the family and friends of the deceased, and thanked the Kusasaletu rescue teams; mine rescue services, the operational team as well as the unions for their hard work and ongoing efforts.

National Union of Mineworkers (NUM) spokesperson Lesiba Ses-hoka said the union was disappointed that the death took place in the same week that the mining industry recommitted itself to uphold health and safety in the industry. In reaction, the NUM appealed to the Department of Mineral Resources to strengthen regulation and enforce compliance.
