"In Association with North-West Debt Counselling"

Rustenburg – A police crime blitz netted 56 suspects in Rustenburg during operation Fiella II which lasted for two days, Thursday and Friday 15 and 16 March.

The swoop was part of a concerted police effort which culminated in the arrest of 280 suspects in the province's seven police clusters, according to provincial commissioner, lieutenant general Baile Motswenyane.

The crime statistics given listed 133 as suspects arrested for assaults and 17 for common robbery, whilst 17 were apprehended for malicious damage to property. Fifteen of the suspects were held for rape and 22 for burglary in residential and business areas. Sixteen suspects were arrested for theft and the rest were nabbed for numerous other offences. "Of these arrests, 68 were for crimes against women and children," said lieutenant colonel Pelonomi Makau, police spokesperson.

The targeted clusters were Rustenburg, Brits, Mafikeng, Klerksdorp, Zeerust, Pudumoe and Vryburg. Motswenyane lauded the members for their hard work that led to the success. She said that the police will continue with various operations to make certain that perpetrators are brought to book.

Fuel will be more expensive in April

Although basic fuel prices are showing signs of further decreases at month end, the overall price of fuel is set to increase because of the addition of increased fuel levies in April. This is according to the unaudited mid-month fuel price data released by the Central Energy Fund.

The Rand/US dollar exchange rate has been virtually flat since the beginning of the month, with the local currency having weakened against the dollar by around two cents. Over the same period, international oil prices have retreated slightly in favour of South African fuel users.

Petrol is indicating a likely decline of around 12 cents a litre, diesel 18 cents, and illuminating paraffin 13 cents.

However, despite these predicted decreases to the basic fuel price, the additional 52 cents to the fuel levies will push the overall price of fuel at the pumps up going into April.

Even though there's a decrease of 12 cents a litre to the basic price of petrol, the overall price will jump 40 cents in April because of the increases to the General Fuel and Road Accident Fund levies announced by former Finance Minister Malusi Gigaba in his Budget Speech in February.

The Minister announced the General Fuel Levy will increase by 22 cents a litre from R3.15 to R3.37 (7% increase), and the RAF Levy will increase by 30 cents from R1.63 to R1.93 (18% increase). At present 38% and 39% of a litre of 93 octane unleaded petrol inland and coastal goes towards taxes (levies).

A litre of unleaded 93 octane fuel inland currently costs R13.54. With a predicted basic fuel price decrease of 12 cents (in April), this will move down to R13.42. But, the overall price of a litre will increase to R13.94 with the additional 52 cents a litre on the levies.

A litre of unleaded 93 octane at the coast currently costs R13.13. With the predicted decrease of 12 cents this will move down to R13.01 a litre but, again, the overall price will increase to R13.53 with the increase to the levies.

The increases to the levies is concerning and will impact the poorest of the poor the hardest.

The increases are way above inflation, and will have a knock-on effect on other prices, including public transport. The poor, who are already under enormous financial strain, will bear the brunt of these increases, which come at the same time VAT is increasing to 15%. These increases will unfortunately result in a heavier burden for the very people who need relief the most.
