ALL THE GLORY TO GOD

There shall be false prophets!

Rustenburg/ Phokeng – South Africans who are hungry for miracles are increasingly falling victim to false prophets who operate outside busy shopping centres.

False prophets are now taking their money-making miracle schemes to places that are teeming with shoppers and ATM's.

According to police, unsuspecting victims at the Phokeng Mall, just outside Rustenburg are making a bee-line to the police station to register complaints after losing, cash, cell phones and laptops. Police confirmed in a statement that several cases had been reported recently, most of which occurred during the week.

It is alleged that complainants were approached by an unknown male, asking for directions. After approaching the victims, the deceitful prophet will then give a prophecy and inform the victims about their financial challenges, relationship status and other social challenges. It is alleged that these prophecies appeared to be real to some of the victims. The latter would then be informed about a miracle prayer to resolve all their challenges.

The victim and unknown prophet will then walk towards a garage near the mall, where a vehicle is parked and they will get inside the vehicle. The unsuspecting victims will then be hypnotised and robbed during the prayer session of their personal belongings.

One victim was sent to go and buy water for the prophet at the mall and her laptop and other belongings, including cash and a cellular phone were stolen.

Police are warning the community to be careful and not to be distracted by anyone as they may fall victim. Do not speak to strangers or engage into conversation with them. Stay away from strangers.

BAKWENA SADDENED BY EASTER ROAD FATALITIES

N1N4 – Bakwena Platinum Corridor Concessionaire (Bakwena) recorded six fatalities on the N4 route over the Easter holiday period, which saw peak hour traffic volumes reaching 5100 vehicles per hour at Doornpoort plaza on the N4 and 2800 vehicles per hour on the N1 south on Easter Monday. Thursday 29 March saw 37 447 vehicles travel northbound through Carousel plaza and Easter Monday, 2 April saw 38 387 vehicles travelling southbound through Carousel plaza.

Bakwena commercial manager, Liam Clarke said the toll concessionaire is saddened by the deaths on its roads. "We put several measures into place to avoid fatalities and implemented a control of speed by illusion (COSBI) campaign to urge motorists to drive more carefully throughout the Easter period."

The campaign involved the placement of life-size cardboard cut-outs of a police car, motorcycle and traffic policeman along the N1N4 as decoys. These cut-outs were complemented with additional thought provoking road signage to encourage safer driving behaviour over the Easter period.

Bakwena also partnered with Imperial Road Safety and Hyundai SA for six additional patrol vehicles aimed at assisting with more visible policing and crash assistance, as well as to help road users who found themselves in difficult situations along the N1N4 route. These six vehicles travelled 23 061 kilometres over this period.

This is the second consecutive year Bakwena has run the COSBI campaign. The initiative is critical, especially given the announcement by the Automobile Association that 2016 witnessed the highest number of road deaths in 10 years.

According to disturbing research conducted by the World Health Organization (WHO), approximately 1.25 million people die each year because of road traffic crashes worldwide. It also found that road crashes are the leading cause of death among people between the ages of 15 and 29 and are predicted to become the seventh leading cause of death by 2030.

Every year, Bakwena introduces measures to encourage drivers to observe the rules of the road, abide by speed limits, and take extra precautions, especially at designated traffic hotspots during holiday periods.
