AMO VYING FOR PRESTIGIOUS CROWN

Rustenburg/ Phokeng - Amogelang Moagi from Phokeng is one of the finalists for the Miss Commonwealth South Africa (CWSA) 2019 pageant

Miss CWSA, a leadership programme for women aged 20 to 32 years, aims to help participants find their purpose in life through entrepreneurship, education, leadership, self-branding and other initiatives. "It is a charity crown that focuses on building and empowering young women to become better versions of themselves," said Amo.

Finalists will compete for top honours during the contest, scheduled for Saturday 26 October in

MORE PRESTIGIOUS ACCOLADES FOR NALEDI

Rustenburg - Our very own Naledi Ramaboea from Rustenburg is still basking in the global limelight after winning the Ms Ambasador United Nation International 2019/20 and Ms United Nation International 1st runner-up titles.

She broke down in tears when she was announced the winner at the international pageant, which was held at the Zoetic Theatre in Toronto, Canada on Saturday 24 August.

The United Nation pageant recognises volunteers who work hard and diligently on various projects aimed at positively transforming their communities. Through her Boitshoko Naledi Ramaboea Foundation, Naledi has been doing a lot of charity work and empowering young women in her community to work towards succeeding in life and realising their dreams.

Naledi described being crowned as this year's Global Ambassador winner as an honour. "God answered my prayers. I am passionate, dedicated and committed to serve and empower others,"

ONTHATILE ON THE VERGE OF GLORY

Brits - Onthatile Letsoalo, a 23-year old model from Jericho near Brits, is one step closer to achieving her dream of winning the Empress South Africa national beauty pageant. She has made it to the finals of the prestigious modelling event after progressing from the semi-final stage

"I am very happy; I still cannot believe it!" Onthatile said, as she broke the good news to Platinum Weeklv.

The finals will be held at the Sun Coast Casino in Durban on Monday 16 December featured 120 participants.

After losing her parents at a young age, Onthatile did not give up on life but decided to work hard at school. Her perseverance paid off. Besides managing to graduate with a degree in marketing and business. Onthatile now runs a non-profit organisation called Own Your Story Foundation.

TOURISM FACILITIES INSPECTE

Environment, Conservation and Tourism Department, embarked on a fact-finding week-long tour of local tourism facilities within the Bojanala district.

"The visits aimed at examining the status and services that the facilities offer as well as challenges that might be encountered in the parks," said Keorapetse Mosipidi, spokesperson of the department. "Tourism is one of the sectors that contribute positively to the growth and development of the economy of North West province." Mosenogi completed her oversight visit at Kgaswane Nature Reserve, situated approximately 7km outside the Rustenburg central business district on 9 October. Kgaswane Nature Reserve, covering 5,300ha, offers a unique nature experience as compared to the other 15 nature reserves in the province. It hosts a variety of antelopes and has conservation significance under the Magalies Biosphere and the beginning of the Magalies Mountain Range.
