

UBUNTU'S SECOND BATCH OF GRADUATES

Hartbeespoort/ Orange Farm – Since its inception in 2015, Ubuntu Pre-school has been a safe haven and educational refuge for children... A place where hard working parents can entrust their children to.

On Thursday 5 December, members of the community and parents alike were invited to join Ubuntu Pre-school in celebrating its graduating class of 2019. The dedicated teachers strive to prepare the kids with all the skills they need to graduate and attend primary school.

This sometimes means that the staff have to work from very early in the mornings until very late at night to accommodate parents who start work early or come home late. The school also provides their children with porridge, morning tea and sandwiches daily.

There are currently approximately 87 children who attend the school, but due to their parents' financial difficulties, some of them are not able to attend on a full-time basis. About 100 other children from the community can still not attend the school.

During the celebration representatives from Krones handed out gifts and sweet packets to the children.

"When you invest in children, you invest in the future and that is why we support any structure that supports the future of our country," said Krones manager Isaac Kgafela.

Ubuntu Pre-School principal Pumla Gwilikana said: "Thank you for every donation, every sponsor and every parent who attended the graduation. A very special thank you to Krones for ensuring a smile on every child's face and for your selflessness in supporting our school."
