Sewage threatens Arendskloof's paradise

Platinum Weekly newspaper | Rustenburg – Birdsong across the water. Children casting fishing lines. A quiet afternoon beside a dam alive with fish. For families in Arendskloof, the network of dams has been the heart of their little paradise – and home to creatures that need no gate code to belong.

Now, a foul sewage stench hangs over that setting. Platinum Weekly's reporter could smell it. For residents, the pollution reaches beyond the water's edge and into the daily experience of being home.

On Tuesday 10 November 2026, Ward 15 councillor André van Dyk said approximately 1,300 dead fish had been removed from the dam. According to Van Dyk, sewage entered stormwater drains during sewer repairs on Arend Road and flowed into the dam.

The fish deaths are the most visible loss. The wider concern is what this contamination means for the birds, insects and other creatures that depend on these waters.

On 4 November, Arendskloof Master Property Association chairman Danie Rossouw lodged a formal complaint with the Department of Water and Sanitation, requesting an independent investigation, urgent inspections, water-quality testing and rehabilitation. His complaint made a crucial point: removing dead fish does not remove the underlying pollution.

Global Climate Justice campaign has a message for the Platinum Belt

Platinum Weekly newspaper | Rustenburg – What do climate change, mining and other major developments such as data centres and large-scale solar plants, water security, biodiversity and the future of local communities have in common? According to the Ecumenical Decade of Climate Justice Action (2025–2034), they are increasingly part of the same conversation.

The international initiative by world churches, launched in Johannesburg in 2025, calls on churches and communities to turn concern about climate change into practical action over the next decade.

For communities across Rustenburg and the wider platinum belt, the message is particularly relevant. This is a region where mining supports thousands of livelihoods and makes an enormous contribution to the economy, but where decisions about development – including data centres and large-scale solar plants – must also consider water resources, land, biodiversity, cultural heritage and the wellbeing of communities.

Climate justice asks a challenging question: How do we pursue development while ensuring that its benefits and environmental costs and risks are shared fairly? This question is increasingly important in South Africa as communities face rising temperatures, unpredictable rainfall, pressure on water resources, land degradation and biodiversity loss.

The Decade encourages practical responses rather than simply talking about climate change. These include restoring degraded land, conserving water, protecting biodiversity, supporting renewable energy and sustainable livelihoods, and involving communities meaningfully in decisions affecting their environment.

Importantly for South Africa, it also recognises the value of indigenous and local knowledge. Generations of knowledge about water, plants, grazing, wildlife and landscapes can complement scientific research in finding solutions to environmental challenges.

The initiative is not only directed at governments. Churches, schools, community organisations, municipalities, conservation groups, businesses and the mining and energy sectors all have a potential role to play.

For platinum-producing communities, the next decade presents both a challenge and an opportunity: can one of the world's most important mineral-producing regions also become an example of responsible development, environmental stewardship and climate justice?

Perhaps climate justice does not begin at an international conference after all. It begins with what happens to the water, land, people and biodiversity in our own communities.

Onalenna Selebogo murder case set for March trial

Platinum Weekly newspaper | Rustenburg – The case against Walter Tshela, who is accused of murdering North-West University (NWU) student Onalenna Selebogo (21), has been postponed to Monday, 8 March 2027, for trial. The case has been postponed several times.

Onalenna's body was found wrapped in sheets at a flat in Tuin Street, Rustenburg, on 3 August 2025. She had sustained multiple stab wounds to her neck. Tshela, her boyfriend at the time, is accused of killing her.

NWU students and staff gathered at vigils to honour Onalenna's memory and call for justice. Those who knew her remember a warm, determined young woman with a bright future ahead of her.

A still from a video circulating on social media shows a roadside altercation in Tlhabane involving a motorcycle delivery rider and a man police identified as an officer. The officer is barefoot and dressed in civilian clothes.

Cop allegedly assaults delivery driver in Thlabane

Platinum Weekly newspaper | Tlhabane – A 33-year-old motorcycle delivery rider has opened a criminal case after an alleged assault involving a police officer in Tlhabane on Saturday afternoon, 7 November 2026. A video of the roadside altercation has been circulating on social media.

North West police spokesperson colonel Adéle Myburgh said the officer was reportedly dressed in civilian clothes at the time. Police are investigating a case of assault and crimen injuria. The SAPS statement did not say what led to the altercation.

North West provincial police commissioner lieutenant general Arthur Peter Adams condemned violence, intimidation and abuse of authority by police members and ordered a departmental investigation alongside the criminal probe.

Woman stabbed and robbed after promise of day work

Platinum Weekly newspaper | Rustenburg – A woman was stabbed several times and robbed of her purse in Mahogany Street, Protea Park, on Wednesday, 4 November 2026, after a man allegedly offered her work for the day.

According to Outdoor Arena Security (OAS), the woman had met the man, believed to be in his mid-40s, at the BP service station in Safari Gardens. He allegedly lured her to Mahogany Street, where he stabbed her, stole her purse and fled into the bushes in the direction of the cultural centre.

Following the attack, the terrified woman initially hid in the bushes before approaching an OAS foot patrol officer at approximately 08:39. The officer immediately notified the OAS reaction unit. Reaction officers arrived and administered first aid to control the bleeding before the woman was taken to Tlhabane Hospital for treatment.

OAS deployed a drone to assist with the search, which extended across the veld areas next to the incident. Unfortunately, the suspect was not located.

Of particular concern is the striking similarity to an incident in August 2025, when another woman was lured with the promise of employment, stabbed and robbed in the same area along Geelhout Avenue and Wildevy Avenue. OAS also responded to that incident.

According to OAS management, the suspect's description and modus operandi in both incidents are remarkably similar, raising concerns that the same individual may be responsible.

"We want to warn all women, particularly domestic workers and those seeking employment in the Safari Gardens and Protea Park areas, to be extremely cautious of strangers offering day jobs or recruitment opportunities. Be especially alert if someone offers you work and then asks you to accompany them to an isolated area," OAS management said.

OAS urges the community to remain vigilant, report suspicious behaviour and never accompany strangers to secluded locations on the promise of employment.

Lightning strikes, and neighbours rush to help

Fire damage to the roof, seen from inside the home.

The tree that caught fire after being struck by lightning in Rustenburg.

Platinum Weekly newspaper | Rustenburg – A Rustenburg family has thanked neighbours, firefighters and OAS Security after lightning struck a tree and a fire broke out in the roof of their home on Sunday 1 November 2026.

The homeowner said the fire was confined to the roof. She estimated that firefighters arrived in less than half an hour and said they took care to limit water damage while putting out the flames. Neighbours rushed to help, and OAS Security officers stayed after firefighters left, helping wherever they could, even holding ladders for the family.

Anton Vogt of OAS Security said his team relayed the alert through emergency groups and helped keep the road clear so emergency vehicles could reach the house. What stood out to him was how quickly everyone came together to help the family. "We want to thank every single person who stepped in to help us, from the bottom of our hearts," the homeowner said. "We're incredibly grateful that we didn't have to go through this alone."

ARENDSKLOOF HAS ENDURED THIS BEFORE

The point where sewage reportedly entered the Arendskloof dam.

Platinum Weekly newspaper | Rustenburg – In our 10 February 2023 article, "Sewage spills into Arendskloof dam", Platinum Weekly reported that dead fish had begun surfacing on 4 February 2023, following a sewage spill from a burst pipe in Arend Road. More than 400 dead carp were removed.

At the time, Jay Jay Esterhuizen of Big Time Construction and his team temporarily blocked the inflow of contaminated water while municipal repairs were awaited. They also worked to prevent sewage reaching the other two dams.

More than three years later, the community is again counting dead fish.

The municipality has recently repaired the Arendskloof Road sewage system. A lasting solution must now include close monitoring of the Arend Road sewerage system, scheduled inspections and preventative servicing before another overflow reaches the dams. Water testing and a rehabilitation plan must establish what is needed to restore the damaged environment.

Arendskloof's residents deserve to enjoy their waterside home again.

The birds, fish and smaller creatures sharing it need clean water to survive. Neither should have to depend on emergency barriers and the hope that the next rainfall will wash the problem away.

Low water levels expose part of the dam bed in front of waterfront homes.

THIRD WEEK OF SEARCHING FOR MISSING HARTBEESPOORT SKIPPER

Platinum Weekly newspaper | Hartbeespoort – The family of missing skipper Jan "Obakeng" Mokonyane has appealed for more equipment and specialist personnel as the search for the 39-year-old enters its third week.

Mokonyane disappeared on Sunday 25 October 2026, after the boat he was operating reportedly capsized on Hartbeespoort Dam. All eight passengers were rescued.

As of Wednesday, 11 November 2026, Mokonyane was still missing and crews were continuing to search the dam's surface by boat. Search teams have also used drones and specialist dogs. Police spokesperson sergeant Kelebogile Morake said that deep water and shifting mats of water hyacinth have complicated the search.

ALLEGED R10 MILLION MINE FRAUD CASE RETURNS TO COURT IN DECEMBER

Platinum Weekly newspaper | Rustenburg – The fraud case against former Sitona Mining employee Alicia Gwyntahon "Gwynnie" Cunningham has been postponed to Monday, 7 December 2026, at the Specialised Commercial Crimes Court sitting in Rustenburg.

Cunningham faces charges linked to the alleged theft of more than R10 million from Sitona Mining between 2014 and 2019, when she worked in the company's accounting division.

The Hawks began investigating in 2019 after financial discrepancies were detected at the company. Cunningham and former colleague Dinah Dorothea Botes were arrested in June 2022 following an investigation into allegedly fraudulent transactions and the diversion of company funds.

Botes was prosecuted separately. In February 2024, the Rustenburg Magistrates' Court convicted her on 126 counts of theft involving more than R9.3 million and sentenced her to 15 years in prison.

Five years behind bars for Phokeng man who assaulted girlfriend

Platinum Weekly newspaper | Phokeng – The Tlhabane Magistrates' Court sentenced Sipho Johannes Masuku (33) to five years' direct imprisonment on Friday, 23 October 2026, for assaulting his girlfriend and leaving her seriously injured.

Masuku was convicted of assault with intent to do grievous bodily harm. The court also declared him unfit to possess a firearm.

North West police spokesperson sergeant Kelebogile Morake said the court heard that on 21 July 2025, Masuku asked to borrow his girlfriend's cellphone, saying he wanted to play games. He searched through the phone and became violent after seeing something that angered him. He punched and kicked the 28-year-old woman, who managed to escape and report the assault to police.

Detective sergeant Lopang Ramasita of Phokeng Detectives took over the investigation. Police traced and arrested Masuku two days after the assault. He remained in custody until his conviction and sentencing.

North West provincial police commissioner lieutenant general Arthur Peter Adams welcomed the sentence and commended Ramasita and the prosecution team for their work.

Detective sergeant Lopang Ramasita of Phokeng Detectives led the investigation that secured the conviction of Sipho Johannes Masuku.

Rustenburg riders gear up for Ride Joburg

Rustenburg Cycling Club's mountain bikers at Olifantsnek on the return leg of their 75 km ride.

The mountain bikers reach the top of Dieter's Climb on their way back from Akwaaba.

Platinum Weekly newspaper | Rustenburg – Rustenburg Cycling Club riders put in some final kilometres ahead of Ride Joburg 94.7 with a 140 km road ride past Sun City and a 75 km mountain bike outing through the Magaliesberg foothills on Saturday 7 November 2026.

The road cyclists kept to a steady endurance pace as they rode through Boshoek and past Sun City, returning to Rustenburg along the R510 via Bospoort Dam. The mountain bikers tackled a demanding out-and-back route to Akwaaba, with views of the Magaliesberg along the way. Their return took them over Dieter's Climb and through Olifantsnek, where they stopped for refreshments at the local filling station. They rounded off the morning with an ice-cold drink at Plato Coffee.

The club looks forward to seeing riders at its next outing and thanked its sponsors, Rustenburg Toyota, Infinity, M Civils, Rustenburg Gearbox Centre, Local Choice Pharmacy and Beds 4 Less.

Is a Sunday afternoon nap a necessity?

Sunday lunch is over, the couch is calling, and those eyelids are getting heavy. For some, a snooze is a treasured weekend ritual; others would rather make the most of their afternoon. Is a Sunday nap essential, or can you happily skip it?

"Yes! After church and Sunday lunch, I settle on the couch to watch TV. Before I know it, I'm having a power nap. It just sneaks up on me!"

Pilane Moche, Rustenburg

"Yes! After a busy week, there's nothing better than a good Sunday lunch and a little nap on the couch. It's the perfect way to recharge before Monday rolls around."

Marilee Esterhuyse, Rustenburg

Did you know?

WHY ONIONS MAKE US CRY... An onion can bring you to tears before you've even finished chopping it. When your knife breaks open the onion's cells, it sets off a chemical reaction that releases an irritating vapour. The culprit has a tongue-twisting name, syn-propanethial-S-oxide. When it reaches your eyes, they produce tears to flush it away. Those kitchen tears are a reflex, even if you're in a perfectly good mood.
